Importance: High

Good Afternoon Chiefs,

Attached are two matrices for the for the Legislative Update Meeting next Wednesday, July 6th. For CPOC strategic planning purposes, we are requesting the documents to be for internal use. Once again, we will be having the AB 109 Implementation Training included at this meeting. Therefore, we encourage you to bring up to two staff members (upper level management) with you.

Additional materials will be provided to you on the day of the meeting. For more information, please see the below email.

Thank you.

Hi Stephanie,

Thanks for sending me the attachments. I have a question for you Given the state of most county budgets, can the additional AB109 money (I expect given the size of Plumas County we will receive the minimum of $100k) be used to pay for staff I bring to the AB109 implementation training next week?

Thanks,
Sharon

SUMMARY OF AB109

Between 1973 and 2009, there was an astounding 705% growth in prison population; thus, the United States' correctional system is dangerously overcrowded with one in thirty-one American adults under some form of correctional control (Hanes, 2008). The prison overcrowding crisis reached its height in 2003 when institutions were operating at 200% of their designed capacity (Petersilia, 2006). Despite increased corrections expenditures, more than four out of ten adult offenders return to prison within three years (Pew, 2009). California greatly contributes to this crisis with recidivism rates reaching 70%.

Despite spending upwards of $9 billion, or ten percent of the State's general fund, California provides few programs for prisoners and has higher inmate-to-officer ratios relative to comparable states (Petersilia, 2006). The State's unacceptable recidivism rates coupled with prison overcrowding and exorbitant spending has sparked legislative and judicial action. In 2009, a panel of three federal judges ordered California to reduce its prison population to 110,000 from 156,000 (the official state prison capacity is 80,000) (Liptak, 2011). On April 4, 2011, Assembly Bill 109 was signed into law. Provisions of the 2011 Realignment are funded by a dedicated portion of sales tax revenue and Vehicle License Fees (VLF) as outlined in the trailer Assembly Bill 118 and Senate Bill 89.

In May, 2011, the federal ruling was upheld by the Supreme Court decision in Brown v. Plata No. 09-1233 where the Court noted that overcrowding is the "primary cause" of "severe and unlawful mistreatment of prisoners through grossly inadequate provision of medical and mental health care...leading to needless suffering and death" (Liptak, 2011, p.1). The Supreme Court ruled for a reduction in the prison population to 137.5% of intended capacity by May 24, 2013.

The 2011 Public Safety Realignment included in AB109 (and subsequent clarifying legislation) will no doubt have a substantial impact to local criminal justice systems and communities. Reform efforts offer California an inimitable opportunity to address the long-standing issues related to the management of the correctional population at both the state and local levels. This legislation represents the most significant reform to California Sentencing law in a generation and substantially changes the fundamental aspects of the prosecution, incarceration and supervision of criminals in Plumas County. Essentially, public safety realignment shifts the responsibility for incarceration and supervision of a broad range of felons from the state to the counties. The stated objectives of Public Safety Realignment include addressing the growing cost of the state's prison system, decreasing the state's 70% recidivist rate and reducing the state's inmate capacity. Prospectively applied to all offenders sentenced after October 1, 2011, AB109 redefines a felony enabling California to prevent low-level inmates from cycling in and out of state prison.

The legislation specifically assigns new local responsibilities for managing adult offenders by affording maximum flexibility and control to county jurisdictions. However, if managed poorly, the shift of the population and associated deinstitutionalization of offenders could have a negative impact on local public safety. On the other hand, this reform effort offers California a unique opportunity to address long-standing issues related to the management of the correctional population at both the state and local levels.

This document provides an initial plan that assists Plumas County in the transition activities necessary to successfully implement the requirements of AB109 during the first year of the system reform effort. However, it is critical to recognize that although these Post Release Community Supervision (PRCS) offenders are deemed “low risk” due to their committing offense, California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) classification gives no consideration to gang involvement, prior criminal history, prior violence, etc. It is expected that some of these PRCS offenders will present a high risk for violence and re-offending, and will represent a risk to public safety that cannot be immediately observed by only their status of classification as a PRCS offender.

Key elements of AB109 include:

- Redefining Felonies: Revises the definition of a felony to include certain crimes that are punishable in jail for 16 months, 2 years, or 3 years. Some offenses, including serious, violent, and sex offenses, are excluded and sentences will continue to be served in state prison; however, the excluded offenders will be subject to probation rather than parole supervision upon release from prison.
- Local Post-release Community Supervision: Offenders released from state prison on or after October 1, 2011, after serving a sentence for an eligible offense shall be subject to, for a period not to exceed 3 years, post-release community supervision provided by an agency approved by the County’s Board of Supervisors (on July 19, 2011, the Board Appointed the Probation Department as the supervising agency).
- Revocations Heard and Served Locally: Post-release community supervision and parole revocations will be served in local jails (up to 180 days), with the exception of paroled ‘lifera’ who have a revocation term of greater than 30 days. The Courts will hear formal revocations of post-release community supervision while the Board of Parole will conduct parole violation hearings in jail.
- Changes to Custody Credits: Jail inmates will be able to earn four days of credit for every two days served. Time spent on home detention (i.e., electronic monitoring) is credited as time spent in jail custody. This means inmates will be required to serve 50% of their sentence in custody, minus any credits for time served prior to their sentence as determined by the Court, instead of two-thirds of their sentence, which is the current law.

- Alternative Custody: Penal Code Section 1203.018 authorizes electronic monitoring for inmates being held in the county jail in lieu of bail. Eligible inmates must first be held in custody for 60 days post-arraignment for felony offenses, or 30 days for those charged with misdemeanor offenses.
- Target Population: The post-release community supervision population, released from prison to community supervision, is the responsibility of local Probation Departments and is inclusive of non-violent, non-serious, non-high-risk sex offenders (as determined by CDCR). This population can have serious or violent offenses in their criminal history. The population that will serve their prison sentences locally includes the non-violent, non-serious, non-sex-offender group. These population groups are referred to as the non-nons or N³s.
- Community Based Sanctions: Authorizes counties to use a range of community-based punishment and intermediate sanctions other than jail incarceration alone or traditional routine probation supervision.

Community Corrections Partnership (CCP) Executive Committee & Plan

Section 1230 of the California Penal Code is amended to read, "Each county local Community Corrections Partnership established pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 1230 shall recommend a local plan to the County Board of Supervisors for the implementation of the 2011 public safety realignment. (b) The plan shall be voted on by an executive committee of each county's Community Corrections Partnership consisting of the Chief Probation Officer of the county as chair, the Sheriff, the District Attorney, the Public Defender, Presiding Judge or her designee, and the department representative listed in either Section 1230(b)(2)(G), 1230(b)(2)(H), or 1230(b)(2)(J) as designated by the County Board of Supervisors for purposes related to the development and presentation of the plan (on July 19, 2011, the Board of Supervisors appointed Mimi Hall, AOD Administrator). (c) The plan shall be deemed accepted by the County Board of Supervisors unless rejected by a vote of 4/5ths in which case the plan goes back to the Community Corrections Partnership for further consideration. (d) Consistent with local needs and resources, the plan may include recommendations to maximize the effective investment of criminal justice resources in evidence-based correctional sanctions and programs, including, but not limited to, day reporting centers, drug courts, residential multi-service centers, mental health treatment programs, electronic and GPS monitoring programs, victim restitution programs, counseling programs, community service programs, educations programs, and work training programs."
